RESULT OF OPERATIONS

As at September 30, 2018 and March 31, 2018, the net asset value of the Fund was $12.8 million. The Fund had net redemptions of $0.1 million during the period. The portfolio's performance increased assets by $0.1 million. Class A shares returned 0.7% after fees and expenses for the six-month period ended September 30, 2018.

The performance of the Fund's other classes is substantially similar to that of Class A shares, except for differences in the structure of fees and expenses. For the returns of the Fund's other classes, please refer to the "Past performance" section.

The following commentary pertains to the results of operations of the underlying fund.

After a volatile first half of 2018 during which the risk premium was repriced globally, risk assets found some reprieve at the beginning of the third quarter. However, the persistence of U.S.-China trade tensions and continued tightening of global financial conditions triggered another bout of volatility, particularly in emerging markets.

In developed markets, economic activity remains on track but has become increasingly tilted toward the U.S. Indeed, solid U.S. economic performance has been a dominant driver of global financial markets in recent months, strengthening the U.S. dollar against most major currencies (with the notable exception of the Canadian dollar) and causing U.S. interest rates to rise. U.S. economic developments are in line with the U.S. Federal Reserve's ("Fed") projections, creating a high hurdle for the Fed to relent – or even pause – on its current path of tightening monetary policy.

In Canada, the Bank of Canada ("BoC") hiked interest rates in July, the second time this year to 1.5%. While economic data have evolved broadly in line with BoC forecasts, business uncertainty induced by the NAFTA (now U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement, or USMCA) re-negotiations has led the BoC to proceed with caution in its rate-hiking cycle, keeping rates unchanged at its September meeting. However, the resolution of trade negotiations with the U.S. and Mexico removed what was arguably the single greatest risk to the BoC policy rate path.

In Europe, the populist Italian government will continue to cause grief for the European Union ("EU") with its recent announcement of a 2.4% budget deficit for 2019. While this figure meets the EU's Stability and Growth Pact of not running a budget deficit in excess of 3%, the EU will likely push back given the previous Italian government's commitment to shrink the budget deficit.

Against this backdrop, global bond markets saw interest rates rise across developed markets. In North America, 10-year rates in Canada and the U.S. ended the third quarter at 2.43% and 3.06%, respectively, while in Europe, 10-year rates reached 0.47% in Germany and 1.57% in the U.K.

For the U.S. short rates, 3-month U.S. T-bills and 3-month LIBOR levels rose from 1.71% and 2.31% to 2.20% and 2.40%, respectively over the period.

The total return of the portfolio was primarily driven by the yield earned on portfolio holdings. In an environment of rising rates, investments in short-dated instruments, and a continued preference for commercial paper, corporate and non-federal government debt allowed the Fund to add value relative to U.S. T-bills. The portfolio maintained a material cash position over the period, detracting from alpha, and maintained a laddered maturity structure using higher rated and/or short-term instruments, which helped meet regulatory requirements, as well as the liquidity needs of the Fund.

Portfolio duration is short relative to the benchmark. From a spread product perspective, we remain overweight corporate credit, with a material concentration in the financial sector and government credit to collect better income relative to federal T-bills.

A laddered maturity structure was implemented for the portfolio during the period. This structure aims to further enhance Fund liquidity by generating stable and frequent cash flows via weekly and monthly maturities, while reducing transaction costs and collecting better income.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

In the near term, we expect positive economic momentum in the U.S. to continue, which would be supportive of credit spreads in this market. This should also enable the Fed to continue tightening monetary policy by raising interest rates, so we expect that short-term interest rates will continue to rise in the U.S.

In the medium term, we continue to closely monitor inflation dynamics in the U.S., as additional wage pressures or further escalation of the U.S.-China trade war could put upward pressure on inflation expectations. This could force the Fed to raise interest rates faster than has been currently communicated to the market.

While financial conditions have become less accommodative globally, the speed at which the Fed is normalizing monetary policy is outpacing other developed market central banks. A growing divergence between U.S. rates and the rest of the world could continue strengthening the U.S. dollar. A sharp tightening of global financial conditions could lead investors to shed risky assets.

In the geopolitical sphere, we continue to monitor developments in the U.S.-China relationship and the ongoing Brexit negotiations.

Although the growth outlook remains constructive in major economies, particularly in the U.S., we note downside risks as global markets adjust to the reversal of accommodative financial conditions, which have been in place for the last decade. As such, we stand

CI Short-Term US$ Corporate Class

Management Report of Fund Performance for the period ended September 30, 2018 (Expressed in US$) ready to manage these risks in the portfolio by adding duration (interest rate exposure) and/or reducing exposure to credit spreads.

Over the medium term, higher global trade barriers and the emergence of populist politics and policies could result in a buildup of inflationary pressures. This increases risks of monetary policy errors if central banks are perceived to fall behind the curve, incentivizing a shorter duration positioning against the benchmark.

In the near term, we continue to monitor developments in global trade wars although we would note that global growth remains constructive. Until there is more clarity on trade negotiations for NAFTA, Brexit, and U.S.-China, we expect volatility to remain elevated and note that the probability of downside risks across global capital markets has risen. Therefore, we stand ready to manage these risks in the portfolio by adding duration (interest rate exposure) and/or reducing exposure to spread risk premia.

Effective September 20, 2018, Tom Eisenhauer became a member of the Board of Governors ("BOG") and Independent Review Committee ("IRC"), and effective October 15, 2018, Mary Robertson resigned as a member of the BOG and IRC.

(1) This information is derived from the Fund's semi-annual and annual financial statements.

(2) Management expense ratio is calculated based on expenses charged to the Fund (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) and is expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets for the period, including the Fund's proportionate share of any underlying fund(s) expenses, if applicable. The Effective HST tax rate is calculated using the attribution percentage for each province based on shareholder residency and can be different from 13%.

(3) The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net assets during the period, including the Fund's proportionate share of such expenses of any underlying fund(s), if applicable.

(4) The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio advisor manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the fiscal period. The higher a Fund's portfolio turnover rate in a period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a higher turnover rate and the performance of a Fund. Portfolio turnover rate is calculated by dividing the lesser of the cost of purchases and the proceeds of sales of portfolio securities for the period, and excluding cash and short-term investments maturing in less than one year, and before assets acquired from a merger, if applicable, by the average of the monthly fair value of investments during the period.

(5) This information is provided for the period ended September 30, 2018 and the years ended March 31.
